Alliances for Society: CHARM-EU Conference 2023

The 2023 CHARM-EU Conference, Alliances for Society, will take place in Würzburg, Germany on the 7th of November 2023. Hosted by Julius-Maximilians Universität Würzburg, the conference will connect European University Alliances with business and industry partners, and local and regional governments, to build a sustainable Europe.

Erasmus+ representatives, higher education institutions and alliances from across the EU will meet with existing and potential partners to shape the future of research and collaboration.

Under the heading of Alliances for Society, this year's conference focuses on two themes: Collaborating with Business and Industry and Engaging with Local & Regional Governments. The aim is to bring together local and regional stakeholders from industry, business, government, and NGOs to discuss their collaboration with EU university alliances.

Registration for the conference is open and free. Some sessions will be available in hybrid format, allowing for remote participation. The hybrid sessions will also include real-time captioning.

CHARM-EU is an alliance of 9 European universities. We are creating the university of the future and reconciling humanity with the planet. Now in its 3rd year, our Masters in Global Challenges for Sustainability brings students, academics, and industry together to address the challenges of the 21st century. As well as the educational output, the Alliance is also working on innovative research projects and methodologies. These projects focus on engaging non-academic actors, developing a common R&I agenda, and mainstreaming Open Science. CHARM-EU education and research approaches embrace transdisciplinarity, equality, and innovation to foster excellence, quality, and competitiveness within the European Universities initiative.
